Understanding this vocabulary can help prevent a lot of misunderstanding. Notice we said help. There is no way to entirely prevent misunderstandings between men and women because men and women are two different species with two different vocabularies and two different sets of needs and two different sets of genes pushing them unconsciously in two different directions. Communication is ALWAYS strained at best and must always be done with forethought and caution. But, of course, that is from a man's point of view. LOL

PS Men should never use the word 'but'. A woman might interpret that as the word butt and then you are in real trouble. As soon as a man says "But, dear I meant....." then forget it you've lost the battle. There is NO recovery, no way of extracting yourself because you are already in knee deep doo doo, so just don't ever use that word guys.
